NEW QUESTION: 2

You have Windows 8.1 Enterprise client computers. All of the computers are managed by using Microsoft System Center 2012 Configuration Manager.

You enable Microsoft System Center 2012 Endpoint Protection on the computers.

You need to ensure that Endpoint Protection automatically downloads the latest available malware definition updates when unidentified malware is detected on the computers. What should you configure from the System Center 2012 Endpoint Protection settings?

- A. MAPS
- B. Real-time protection
- C. Advanced
- D. Default actions

Answer: A

Explanation:

Microsoft Active Protection Service. Allows the collection and sending of information about detected malware to Microsoft.

Advanced. Use these settings to configure actions such as system restore point creation, client interface visibility, quarantined item deletion period, allowing users to exclude specific folders, and scan and definition update schedule randomization.

Default actions. Allows you to specify how malware is treated once detected based on malware threat level. You have the option of having malware quarantined or removed. You can also configure Endpoint Protection to take whatever action is recommended by Microsoft.

Enable real-time protection. You can use the settings here to enable real time protection.

You can also enable or disable scanning of incoming and outgoing files, and all downloaded files and attachments. You can also enable behavior monitoring, which can detect new malware based on behavioral characteristics and also enable protection against network-based exploits.
