NEW QUESTION: 2
Which three are true?
A. A rollback () method invocation releases any database locks currently held by this connection object.
B. An instance of Savepoint represents a point in the current transaction context.
C. After calling rollback (mysavepoint), you must close the savepoint object by calling mySavepoint.close()
D. A rollback () method invocation rolls a transaction back to the last savepoint.
E. A setAutoCommit (False) method invocation starts a transaction context.
Answer: B,D,E
Explanation:
Explanation/Reference:
Explanation:
A:The way to allow two or more statements to be grouped into a transaction is to disable the auto-commit mode. After the auto-commit mode is disabled, no SQL statements are committed until you call the method commit explicitly. All statements executed after the previous call to the method commit are included in the current transaction and committed together as a unit.

Note:When a connection is created, it is in auto-commit mode. This means that each individual SQL statement is treated as a transaction and is automatically committed right after it is executed. (To be more precise, the default is for a SQL statement to be committed when it is completed, not when it is executed.
A statement is completed when all of its result sets and update counts have been retrieved. In almost all cases, however, a statement is completed, and therefore committed, right after it is executed.)
B:The method Connection.setSavepoint, sets a Savepoint object within the current transaction. The Connection.rollback method is overloaded to take a Savepoint argument. When a transaction is rolled back to a savepoint all changes made after that savepoint are undone.
C: calling the method rollback terminates a transaction and returns any values that were modified to their previous values. If you are trying to execute one or more statements in a transaction and get a SQLException, call the method rollback to end the transaction and start the transaction all over again.
