NEW QUESTION: 1

A hosting company provides inexpensive guest virtual machines to low-margin customers. Customers manage their own guest virtual machines. Some customers want basic guarantees of logical separation from other customers and it has been indicated that some customers would like to have configuration control of this separation; whereas others want this provided as a value-added service by the hosting company. Which of the following BEST meets these requirements?

- A. The hosting company should manage the hypervisor-based firewall; while allowing customers to configure their own host-based firewall.
- B. The hosting company should install a hypervisor-based firewall and allow customers to manage this on an as-needed basis.
- C. The hosting company should install a host-based firewall on customer guest hosts and offer to administer host firewalls for customers if requested.
- D. Customers should purchase physical firewalls to protect their guest hosts and have the hosting company manage these if requested.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2

An organization wants to host a critical application on two redundant leased servers located on the ISP's datacenter. Which of the following is this an example of?

- A. Public cloud
- B. IaaS
- C. SaaS
- D. PaaS

Answer: B

Explanation:

Infrastructure as a service (IaaS) is an instant computing infrastructure, provisioned and managed over the Internet.

IaaS helps you avoid the expense and complexity of buying and managing your own physical servers and other datacenter infrastructure. Each resource is offered as a separate service component, and you only need to rent a particular one for as long as you need it. The cloud computing service provider manages the infrastructure, while you purchase, install, configure, and manage your own software-operating systems, middleware, and applications.

NEW QUESTION: 4

You are administering a database stored in Automatic Storage Management (ASM). You use RMAN to back up the database and the MD_BACKUP command to back up the ASM metadata regularly. You lost an ASM disk group DG1 due to hardware failure.

In which three ways can you re-create the lost disk group and restore the data?

- A. Use the MD_RESTORE command to restore the disk group with the changed disk group specification, failure group specification, name, and other attributes and use RMAN to restore the data.
- B. Use the MD_RESTORE command to restore both the metadata and data for the failed disk group.
- C. Use the MKDGG command to restore the disk group with the same configuration as the backed-up disk group name and same set of disks and failure group configuration, and use RMAN to restore the data.
- D. Use the MKDGG command to add a new disk group DG1 with the same or different specifications for failure group and other attributes and use RMAN to restore the data.
- E. Use the MD_RESTORE command to restore metadata for an existing disk group by passing the existing disk group name as an input parameter and use RMAN to restore the data.
- F. Use the MKDGG command to restore the disk group with the same configuration as the backed-up disk group and data on the disk group.

Answer: A,B,D

Explanation:

Note:

* The md_restore command allows you to restore a disk group from the metadata created by the md_backup command.

/md_restore Command Purpose This command restores a disk group backup using various options that are described in this section.

/ In the restore mode md_restore, it re-create the disk group based on the backup file with all user-defined templates with the exact configuration as the backed up disk group. There are several options when restore the disk group full - re-create the disk group with the exact configuration nodg - Restores metadata in an existing disk group provided as an input parameter newdg - Change the configuration like failure group, disk group name, etc..

* The MD_BACKUP command creates a backup file containing metadata for one or more disk groups. By default all the mounted disk groups are included in the backup file which is saved in the current working directory. If the name of the backup file is not specified, ASM names the file AMBR_BACKUP_INTERMEDIATE_FILE.
