NEW QUESTION: 3

You have activated several currencies so that users in different countries can view revenue data in reports in their local currency. However, you received a complaint from a sales manager that she sees incorrect revenue numbers in her team reports now that she has switched to a different currency. What is the likely problem?

A. Reports can only display data in the company default currency.

B. All of the manager's team members must use the same currency for her reports to roll-up correctly.

C. The manager does not have the role-based can read all records check box selected in her user profile.

D. you did not set up exchange rates for the newly activated currencies.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

The Currency setting provides the default currency amount linked with all new records the user creates.

When a user views revenue reports, they display in the user's default currency. If a manager sees cumulative revenue from users with different currencies, she sees the amount in her default currency (company administrators must set up exchange rates for this to occur).

NEW QUESTION: 4

Joe Treader is the owner of a small, state-registered investment advisory firm that is on the verge of becoming insolvent. One of his clients who has become like a mother to him is aware of his financial difficulties and has offered to sell off some of the assets that he manages for her and loan him the money to get him through this period of economic uncertainty until he is able to get on his feet again.

Can Joe take her up on her offer?

A. Yes. Based on the facts presented, it is an unsolicited offer and, as such, Joe can (and should) accept it.

B. Both A and B are true.

C. Yes, but only if Joe draws up a formal loan agreement with a fair interest rate, based on the going market rates, stated in the agreement as well as a firm date for principal repayment.

D. No. As the client's investment adviser, he has a fiduciary relationship with the client.

Entering a loan agreement with this client could lead to conflicts of interest.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation: No, Joe cannot take his client's offer of a loan because it could lead to a conflict of interest--if not today, perhaps in the future--and as a fiduciary Joe will be expected to put this client's welfare ahead of his own. If it takes him a lot longer than expected to get on his feet again, he may be tempted to act in his own best interest.
